Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 07 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
A little less cold on Thursday, further rain at times.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry and chilly with clear spells in places this evening allowing an early sharp frost. Cloud and patchy rain moving eastwards across the region later in the night, perhaps preceded by some snow over high ground. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Thursday:
Breezy and rather cloudy at first on Thursday though feeling slightly milder. Some occasional rain; this mainly over hills. Some brighter spells during the afternoon are possible across eastern areas. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Friday, cloudy with periods of rain, wintry over hills. Cold with further wintry showers on Saturday. Drier on Sunday though remaining cloudy. Breezy around coasts. Widespread overnight frosts likely.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.